What if you went to school in one of the most awesome places around? Or worked in one of those places they write about in books... Books like the One-Minute Manager™, or the FISH! Philosophy™... Have you ever heard someone say, "I should write a book about this! It would be a best seller!"

Well, there exists such a place nestled in the trees in northwest Hillsborough County, surrounded by water, with wooden walkways running through the grounds, and peacocks strolling through the fields. The headmaster, faculty and team went to work last year trying to capture the special essence of the place they call home in powerful words that will capture your heart. The book is called "It's All About Kids", and the first books were just delivered October 11th, at the start of their 35th anniversary celebration, where both founders spoke.

Who should read this book? Anyone who has ever been inspired by stories, true stories, which capture your heart. Anyone who works in education, has children or works around children. Anyone who works in business and understands the importance of setting and achieving goals, the value of a vision or mission statement, the magic of treating others with respect and dignity.

According to Mark Victor Hanson, "Everyone should read this book! It will show you how every child's education can be at it's best." The cover of the book, written by Debbie Happy Cohen and the Faculty and Staff of Independent Day School, Corbett Campus, says it all – "Every Child Deserves A 'Teacher Of The Year'". According to headmaster Dr. Joyce Burick Swartzman, "Teacher Of The Year' is a state of mind! IDS believes that every school can and should be like this for all kids...It is more than just architecture, it is a way of working, caring and focusing on multiple ways to achieve excellence..."

There are many special things happening, daily, weekly, and annually at IDS. Join in the journey as you sail along the pages of their every day stories that will brighten your day, lift your spirits, and stretch you and your children to new heights!

Books can be ordered for $18 from anyone working at Independent Day School, or visit the website at: <http://www.idsyeyes.com> or call (813) 961-3087.
